Course Description

This class is intended as an introduction to the building blocks of economic theory. It is designed to expose undergraduate students with little to no understanding of the basic theories of economics and market processes. This course is a Mason Core Course for Social and Behavioral Sciences. The following three learning outcomes are required goals of disciplinary or interdisciplinary courses:

- Explain how individuals, groups or institutions are influenced by contextual factors;
- Demonstrate awareness of changes in social and cultural constructs;
- Connect microeconomic principles with experiments. Apply social and behavioral science concepts in the analysis of significant human issues, past or present.

Textbooks

1. Tyler Cowen and Alex Tabarrok, (5th Edition) Modern Principles of Economics: Microeconomics. (Older versions are allowed.)
2. (Optional) Gregory Mankiw, (9th Edition) Principles of Economics.

Grades

Grades will be based on the following:

- (10%) Attendances of two class experiments. The best performer in class experiments can have bonus points.
- (25%) Five Homework Assignments.

- (30%) Midterm Exam.
- (35%) Final Exam.

There will not be make-up dates for the midterm or final. If there is a legitimate emergency, you must contact me as soon as possible and we can discuss alternatives. Late work will be given only 75% of total credit. Late work is not accepted more than one week after the due date.
